There are lonely hearts to cherish. While the days are going by; There are weary souls who perish While the days are going by; If a smile we can renew, As our journey we pursue, O! the good we all may do

There's no time for idle scorning While the days are going by; Let our face be like the morning While the days are going by.

A great battle fought again—a great Union victory, 10,000 rebels killed and wounded, and 15,000 made prisoners. He looks at it and shrugs his shoulder and says: "Look here! that's a cursed Abolition lie!" [Laughter and cries of "That the way of them!"]-Now, I don't know that any one ever did that way down in New Jersey, but over where I lived that was exactly the way they acted, and they tell me copperheads are a good deal alike everywhere. In our country that certainly was the conduct of the copperhead fraternity. At all rebel victories they laughed for joy. When the Union men were singing joyous songs through the streets, on account of the victories gained by the armies of the United States, these men were nowhere to be found.

Temperance Meeting.

D. B. Greene Esq. gave a practical temperance address at Hewitt Hall last Monday evening. He brought the woes of intemperance home. Somebody's Father, husband son, brother, friend was graphically and touchingly described as on the road to ruin, through this evil monster. The address was chiefly directed to our business men. That point developing the interest of our merchants in the temperance question was lucidly stated. Though the trade of a rich nabob, made so by dealing in liquors, may be secured the trade of twenty men, robbed of manhood, of property is lost. Temperance promotes trade, intemperance paralizes it. Rev. Mr. Tindall followed in some appropriate remarks of a similar import. He demonstrated the temptation to which our young men are exposed by contiguity to saloons. The former occupy the upper rooms, the latter the basements. Dr. Rexford in some earnest remarks vindicated our merchants, disproved their apathy in respect to the temperance question. He made some home thrusts in reference to the supineness of professional men. If all our merchants were as wideawake to the evils of intemperance as the Doctor and were as willing to take a noble stand, marked progress would soon be visible. Rev. Mr. Hickey made some pertinent and timely suggestions in reference to the usfulness of women in circulating the pledges. He would have a committee of fifteen beard the lion in his den, visit these rum ferers of their abominable traffic and ap peal to their manhood, if a spark of it remains entreating them to sign the pledge and desist from their ruinous course. Officers

But on the south side is one that will naturally attract the attention not simply of the curious but of superior taste in such things. It is tastefully arranged and full of yankee notions tempting the observer to feel for his wallet and buy something. Mr. L. recently entered this business with promis success. Mr. Dimick is an old experienced druggist, a good citizen and deserves success He is the inventor of the "Capillary Balm' in the sale of which they are doing nobly. See advertisment. CAUTION TO CHILDREN--Now that the holidays are drawing near, we desire to caution parents against permitting their children to eat candies or candy toys that are colored with poisonous matter, especially green and yellow. Cases are frequently reported of children being poisoned by eating candy toys colored with poisonous drugs. About the holiday season children eat a good deal of candy, and sometimes are taken suddenly sick and die, and their deaths are not always attributed to the real cause. Most candren should not be allowed to eat those which are made of composition of sugar

FARM & HOUSEHOLD. FINDING FAULT WITH CHILDREN.

It is at times necessary to censure and punish. But much more may be done by encouraging children when they do well. Be therefore more careful to (xpress your approbation of good conduct that your disapprobation of bad. Nothing discourages a child more than this incessent fault-finding on the part of its parents. And hardly anything can exert more injourious influence upon the disposition of both parent and child. There are two great motives influenceing human action— hope and fear. Both these are at times necessary. But who would not prefer to have her child influenced to good conduct by a desire of pleasing, rather than by fear of offending? If a mother never expresses her gratification when her children do well, and is always censuring them when she sees anything amiss, they feel discouraged and unhappy. They feel that it is usc-less to try to please. Their dispositions become hardened and soured by this ceaseless fretting, and at last finding that whether they do well or ill, they are equally found fault with, they relinqush all efforts to please, and become heedless of reproach. But let a mother approve of her child's conduct wehnever she can. Let her reward him for his efforts to please, by smiles and affection. In this way she will cherish in child's heart some of the noblest and desirable feelings of her nature. She will cultivate in him an amiable dis position and a chearful spirit. Your child has been through the day every day pleasent and obedient. Just before putting him to sleep for the night, you take his hand and say:- "My son you have been very good to-day. It makes me very happy to see you so kind and obedient. God loves little children who are dutiful to their parerts, and he promises to make them happy." This approbation of him, from his mother, is a great reward. And when, with a more than affectionate tone, you say "Good night, my dear son," he leaves the room with his little heart full of feeling. When he closes his eyes for sleep, he is happy and resolves that he will always try to do his duty.—The Mother at Home.

MANAGEMENT OF POULTRY IN WIN-TER.

I keep about a dozen hens; being anxious to obtain a supply of fresh eggs. at all seasons. Last year my hens stopped laying as soon as frost came, and did not commence again until-March. Can you give me any directions for managing them so as to secure a supply of eggs in Winter?—T. B. Chicago.

-Poultry require more attention in Winter than at any other time, yet it is then they are most neglected. will not lay without a portion of animal food. They pick up this in the Spring, Summer and Fall, in the shape of earthworms and insects of various kinds; in Winter they must get scraps of meat. They must be kept warm in cold weather, and on this account the poultry house must be in some sheltered place, and so constructed as to ensure warmth. It should be furnished with a box of sand, one of old mortar well crushed and another of ashes, or dry dust of any kind. A supply of fresh water is also necessary. The roosts should be narrow boards—say three inches wide -as by this means the hens can proteet tueir feet from frost by lying on them. Food should be given with regularity. It is better to give them small quntities frequently than too much at one time Scraps should always be given. Parch.

fork, and turn the soil up full fork deep allowing it to remain in lumps all Winter exposed to the frost, it will put the soil in excellent condition and tend greatly to add to the production of next year's crop. Gardens especially old ones, should also be limed about once every five years, and salted about every other year, aplying of lime at the rate of about thirty bushels to tle acre, and sault from eight to ten. In applying salt keep it from coming it contact with box-edging and all other evergreens, small trees, etc. Such a course will bring up our old gardens n a surprising manner. Turnips, radishes, etc., will grow as well as they ever did, and all other vegitables be largely benefited .- Germantown Telegrapn.

A RECEIPT FOR CURING MEAT. To one gallon of water, take 1½ lbs. of salt, ½ lb; of sugar, ½ oz. of saltpetre, doz. of potash. In this ratio, the pickle is to be increased at any quantity desired. Let these be boiled together, until all the dirt from the sugar rises to the top and is skimmed off. Then throw it into a tub to cool, and when cold, pour it over your beef or pork, to remain the usual time, We Keep the above constantly on hand, and say four or five weeks. The meat must be well covered with pickle, and should be slightly sprinkled with powdered saltpetre. which removes all the surface blood, &c, leaving the meat fresh and clean. Some omit boiling the pickle, and find it to answer well, thoughthe operation of boiling purifies the pickle by throwing off the dirt always to be found in salt or sugar.

If this receipt is properly tried, it will never be adandoned. There is none that surpasses it, if so good. Fo Radual Tasal beg of stood end at base

HEAR WHAT THE MEDICAL PRESS

Commonwealth, Wilmington, Delaware, 9th of April, 1859:

"An English gentleman, formerly connected with the British Army, and who styles himself the 'English Betanic Physician,' has of late gained an extensive reputation here by his-skill in curing all manner of complaints. Some of his patients I have conversed with, and they pronounce his remedies and mode of treatment as very superior. Some hive been restored as if by magic. The medicine he used is distilled by himself from various herbs possessing rare curative properties.

"While acting in the army he devoted his leisure moments to a thorough study of the effects produced by certain medicinal roots and herbs on all manner of diseases. It seems he has found a sure and speedy remedy for all the 'ills that fiesh is helr to.' His practice is already extensive, and is daily increasing. In the complaints to which females are subjected he has no equal, as a large number here have testified that they owe not only their present good health, but their lives, to the skill of this English Betanic Physician."

Scraps should always be given. Parched corn is an excellent food for them.

It is needles to tell how much of the success of the next year's crop depends upon turning up the ground late in November intending for most crops. pondent of the Oddfellow. Boonsboro, Maryland, said on Thursday, the slist of May, 1860:

"Numerous cures of diseases caused by early indiscretion having been performed by the English Botanic Physician, I feel it my duty, having a knowledge of them, to state the fact, believing that in doing so I may do a service to the suffering. One case in particular—that of a young man in this city—is worthy of note. He had become the victim of a habit, the mere allusion to which causes a shudder, and after years of suffering and doctoring gave up all hopes of recovery. He wished to marry, and was dearly beloved by as sweet a girl as ever lisped words of affection, but he was fearful, nervous, and prostrated. He dared not wed on account of the shattered state of his system. He sought relief at the hands of the Botanic Physician, and, astonishing as it may seem, all the bloom and vigor of youth has returned, and he now the happy father of a pair of bright boys."

Any who are suffering, no matter what their complaint, can call on the Botanic Physician confidentially. They may rely upon relief. His office is at No. 221 EAST MADISON STREET, CHICAGO, ILLINOIS.
